

October 23rd, 2018

What if this is the end?

There seems to be a building sense of discomfort with the sustainability of this bull market. Following the spate of headlines in August declaring this the longest bull market of all-time (itself a questionable statistic), investors seem ready to cash in their chips and call it a day, especially when the market dips. While we think that this speaks volumes about investor sentiment and the generational scarring carried over from the Financial Crisis a decade ago, what if they're right? What does the end of a bull market look like?

Interestingly, the returns at the end of bull markets are often greater than the losses at the beginning of bear markets. In fact, combining the average returns in the last year of a bull market (+25%) with the average returns in the first year of a bear market (-16%), results in average net two-year returns of +5% and are positive two-thirds of the time. Said another way, the opportunity cost of selling too early is often greater than the losses from selling too late.

Avg S&P 500® returns in the 6 & 12 months pre- and post-bull market peaks since 1935

Source: Richard Bernstein Advisors LLC, Bloomberg

Dan Suzuki, CFA
Portfolio Strategist
212 692 4020
dsuzuki@rbadvisors.com

For more information About Dan Suzuki, please click here.

Recent & Related articles:

From Fiscal Cliff to Trade Wars

Madonna, hair bands and protectionism

Putting big, scary tariff numbers into context

What about the other 80%?

China: not just another emerging market

How do we know whether or not it's time to sell?

Dan Suzuki is registered with Foreside Fund Services, LLC which is not affiliated with Richard Bernstein Advisors LLC or its affiliates.

Nothing contained herein constitutes tax, legal, insurance or investment advice, or the recommendation of or an offer to sell, or the solicitation of an offer to buy or invest in any investment product, vehicle, service or instrument. Such an offer or solicitation may only be made by delivery to a prospective investor of formal offering materials, including subscription or account documents or forms, which include detailed discussions of the terms of the respective product, vehicle, service or instrument, including the principal risk factors that might impact such a purchase or investment, and which should be reviewed carefully by any such investor before making the decision to invest. RBA information may include statements concerning financial market trends and/or individual stocks, and are based on current market conditions, which will fluctuate and may be superseded by subsequent market events or for other reasons. Historic market trends are not reliable indicators of actual future market behavior or future performance of any particular investment which may differ materially, and should not be relied upon as such. The investment strategy and broad themes discussed herein may be unsuitable for investors depending on their specific investment objectives and financial situation. Information contained in the material has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable, but not guaranteed. You should note that the materials are provided "as is" without any express or implied warranties. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. All investments involve a degree of risk, including the risk of loss. No part of RBA's materials may be reproduced in any form, or referred to in any other publication, without express written permission from RBA. Links to appearances and articles by Richard Bernstein, whether in the press, on television or otherwise, are provided for informational purposes only and in no way should be considered a recommendation of any particular investment product, vehicle, service or instrument or the rendering of investment advice, which must always be evaluated by a prospective investor in consultation with his or her own financial adviser and in light of his or her own circumstances, including the investor's investment horizon, appetite for risk, and ability to withstand a potential loss of some or all of an investment's value. Investing is subject to market risks. Investors acknowledge and accept the potential loss of some or all of an investment's value. Views represented are subject to change at the sole discretion of Richard Bernstein Advisors LLC. Richard Bernstein Advisors LLC does not undertake to advise you of any changes in the views expressed herein.